

Troops Held Ready To Quell Violence In Railroad Strike

Sporadic Outbreaks Reported in Various Parts of Country as Strike Ends First Week.

"STRIKE 100 PER CENT,"
SAYS UNION BULLETIN

Illinois Central Superintendent Assaulted Near New Orleans—Four Men Wounded in Clash.

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS.

Chicago, July 7.—The first week of the strike of railway shopmen ended tonight with sporadic outbreaks of violence reported in widely scattered sections of the country, troops held in readiness to quell trouble in Illinois and soldiers requested in other states, and union officials, railway executives and the United States railroad labor board standing firm in the position each assumed when the walkout started July 1.

The attitude of the federated shopcrafts was indicated tonight when B. M. Jewell, head of the railroad employees department of the American Federation of Labor, issued a statement disclaiming any further responsibility for continuation of the strike and holding the railroads and the labor board to blame for the length of time the walkout lasts.

"Men Forced Out."

"Those who complain because the railway shop strike has not been settled should understand that the men have been forced out much against their will," his statement said.

"The strike has now been in progress one week. Notwithstanding the fact that we have by every means available to us made it known that conference was desired with any responsible person authorized to negotiate a settlement or that any proposal by any person properly authorized would be carefully considered, no move has been made by other parties to bring about a settlement.

"The striking employees are not to be driven back. They are asking only justice, and will not willingly submit to less."

Hooper Makes Plea.

Chairman Ben W. Hooper, of the labor board, issued an individual statement in which he asserted that "the only feasible way" for the shopcrafts organization to end the strike was to follow in the footsteps of the maintenance of way organizations whose officers this week appeared before the board and agreed to postpone their strike pending further negotiations.

The labor board also passed a resolution today declaring it to be the opinion of the board that a carrier has no right to require an employee to perform work regularly delegated to a craft that is on strike unless the employee does this work voluntarily. A decision in this matter was one of the stipulations under which E. F. Grable, head of the maintenance of way men, having maintained that some roads were discharging members of his organization when they refused to do shopmen's work.

From the headquarters of the shopcrafts organization here tonight was issued "strike bulletin number 1," which asserted that the first strike of shopmen was "100 per cent perfect."

The bulletin made public letters from the heads of the trainmen's and engine service unions extending moral support to the strike.

Jewell Bulletin.

"The solidarity shown at the beginning of the strike of railroad shopmen has assured a clean-cut victory at its termination, while among the encouraging signs is that the men struck in even larger percentage of number than they voted in the referendum," the bulletin issued tonight by B. M. Jewell, head of the railroad

FAIR PRICE PAID FOR ROCK QUARRY, STATES W. R. NEEL

If Any Commission Was Paid Crossland, Commission Knows Nothing of It, He Declares.

BIG PROFIT CHARGED ON ROAD NEAR NEWNAN

McMichael Says Four-Mile Stretch Cost $180,000, Contracting Firm Making $60,000 Profit.

Charges made by Representative

McMichael on the floor of the house of representatives Friday that W. W. Crossland, government highway engineer, made a $15,000 commission in connection with the sale to the state of a rock quarry in Elbert county, created a sensation in the legislature and brought the fight on the state highway department to a white heat. The charge by Mr. McMichael was made in the course of a speech in which he attacked the highway department for "throwing money away like water."

W. R. Neel, state highway engineer, stated Friday afternoon that if such a commission was paid Mr. Crossland the state highway department knew nothing about it and had nothing to do with it. He said the department simply purchased the property from the owners at a reasonable price. Mr. Neel said Mr. Crossland was in Alabama, where he was called by the illness of his sister.

"The government engineer is not connected with the state highway department," Mr. Neel said. "I am absolutely satisfied, however, that he will be able to clarify his connection with the deal discussed in the house Friday when he returns to Atlanta. I know that the entire deal was put through with the knowledge of the government and that Mr. Crossland kept the government informed at all times of every detail of the transaction."

Two Big Features.

The McMichael charges in the house and the senate filibuster were the two outstanding features of the session Friday. The members of the assembly adjourned until Monday. On their return the senate filibuster will be continued in all probability unless some agreement is reached to stop it. Senator L. C. Brown stated that as soon as the filibuster over the repeal of the tax equalization law is over he will renew his fight for a legislative investigation of the state department of agriculture and also will insist on the passage of his measure providing for the abolition of the state bureau of markets.

In the house next week two bills will be introduced providing for the abolition of the offices of special attorneys. One of the bills is directed against the special attorney for the state highway department and the other is directed against the special attorney for the state railroad commission.

The fight of Representative McMichael against the state highway department occupied nearly the entire time of the house during the session Friday. The house resolved itself into a committee of the whole to hear the various questions raised by Representative McMichael.

In his speech Representative Mc-

SENATOR WATSON SLIGHTLY BETTER

But Physician in Charge Declares He Cannot Resume Duties for Two Weeks.

Constitution Bureau,
Raleigh Hotel.

Washington, July 7.—(By Constitution Leased Wire.)—Senator Thomas E. Watson, Georgia, who has been confined to his bed for several days from an attack of bronchitis, will be unable to return to the senate for two weeks, Dr. Grant S. Barnhart, physician in charge, stated today.

The Georgia senator was reported to be resting some better, but is said to be still in a serious condition. Dr. Barnhart stated that while he had never despaired of Senator Watson's life, at the same time his condition was such as to demand careful treatment and long rest.

It was learned today that both Mrs. Watson, wife of the Georgia senator, and Mrs. Lyle, managing editor of the Columbia Sentinel and member of Senator Watson's family, are confined to bed from illness. Mrs. Lyle is receiving treatment at a local hospital. Dr. Barnhart stated that both members of the senator's household had been very ill, but were apparently somewhat improved today.

TARIFF GAG MOVE
LOSES IN SENATE,
LACKING 9 VOTES

La Follette Warns Republicans That Passage of Proposed Bill Means Defeat at Polls.

SOLID DEMOCRATIC VOTE AGAINST MOTION

Watson of Indiana, Pleads for Cloture, and Charges Adroit Democratic Filibuster.

Washington, July 7.—Defeat of the republican motion for cloture on the administration tariff bill, and a dramatic attack on that measure by Senator La Follette, of Wisconsin, a republican member of the committee that represented it, featured today's proceedings in the senate. The vote to invoke the existing cloture rule was 45 to 35, or nine less than the necessary two-thirds majority. The democrats were a unit against the motion, which also was opposed by five republicans. The roll call follows:

Roll Call.

For the motion—Republicans: Ball, Bursum, Calder, Capper, Curtis, Edge, Elkins, Ernst, Fernald, France, Frelinghuysen, Gooding, Hale, Harrell, Johnson, Jones of Washington, Kellogg, Keyes, Ladd, Lenroot, Lodge, McCormick, McCumber, McKinley, McLean, McNary, Nelson, Newberry, Nicholson, Norbeck, Oddie, Pepper, Phipps, Poindexter, Rawson, Shortridge, Smoot, Spencer, Sterling, Sutherland, Townsend, Wadsworth, Warren and Willis—45.

Against the motion—Republicans: Borah, Brandegee, La Follette, Moses and Norris—5.

Democrats: Ashurst, Broussard, Caraway, Culberson, Dial, Fletcher, Gerry, Harris, Harrison, Hefflin, Jones of New Mexico, Kendrick, King, Myers, Overman, Owen, Pittman, Pomeroy, Randall, Robinson, Sheppard, Shields, Simmons, Smith, Stanley, Swanson, Tamm, Underwood, Walsh of Massachusetts, and Walsh of Montana—30.

Total against, 35.

La Follette's Attack.

Delivering the first of a promised series of attacks on the tariff, Senator La Follette declared the only way the republican party could be saved from defeat in the congressional elections in November and from "disaster" in the presidential election in 1924, was to recommit the bill for rewriting on the basis of "the old republican principle" of merely equalizing the difference in the cost of production at home and abroad. If that could not be done, he added, the legislation should be abandoned.

Characterizing the bill as even worse than the Dingley and Payne-Aldrich laws, which he declared, had caused the political upsets in 1910, 1912, 1914 and 1916, Senator La Follette asked his colleagues if they thought the people had forgotten; if they thought the people would "calmly accept the burdens in 1922, which they so decisively refused to carry in 1910 and 1912."

"Powerful, indeed, must be the influences which can bludgeon through this legislation," he said, "when the political leaders responsible for it know that it means the defeat of their party and the end of the political lives of most of the leaders responsible for this bill."

Cotton Schedule.

Taking up specifically the cotton schedule in the bill, Senator La Follette declared the rates as reported to the senate in many instances were from 11 to 90 per cent higher than those in the Payne-Aldrich law, and from 100 to 200 per cent higher than those in the existing statute. He said the committee majority had removed "one of the many jokers slipped into the cotton schedule" and lowered

Grant and Piedmont Park Crowds Will Hear Radio

Pipe organ and vocal music will regale the throngs of recreation-seekers at both Piedmont and Grant parks Sunday afternoon through the efforts of The Constitution's radio department, Charles A. Sheldon, city organist; Miss Edythe Gwendolyn Cone, operatic soprano, and P. L. Meadow, whistler.

After several weeks of planning and work, The Constitution's radio experts have installed apparatus in Grant park similar to that in Piedmont park through which the music from the City Auditorium can be transmitted to the Sunday crowds. A loud speaker will hurl the harmony to the farthest corners of the great city parks, reaching every one, swimmers in the lakes, strollers along the driveways and spongers on the benches among the trees.

Tests made yesterday assure the best possible quality of service for the concert. It will last a full hour, from 3:30 to 4:30 o'clock. At the same time that the music reaches the park it will be wirelessly through the heavens to radiophone listeners throughout the south.

HARDING EXPECTED TO END DEADLOCK IN MINER STRIKE

President Will Probably Personally Intervene to End Strike, On Return to Washington.

GOVERNMENT HAS PLAN
SAY HOOVER REPORTS

Conference of Anthracite Division On Friday, Without Result, Adjourns Until Monday.

BY CLAYTON WHITEHILL,
United News Staff Correspondent.

Washington, July 7.—President Harding, returning from Marion late Saturday will be confronted with the apparent necessity of personally intervening to break the long deadlock between bituminous and anthracite operators and miners.

Secretaries Davis and Hoover, after sitting through conferences of the respective groups during the last week are now preparing a joint report thereon to be presented to the president.

It was stated on the highest authority Friday, that the president will act immediately if next Monday's bituminous conference fails to reach a settlement.

Hoover Confident.

Despite the apparent hopelessness of the situation, Secretary Hoover is understood to have informed senate leaders that the government has a plan which will definitely end the strike. Pending the outcome of this, senators who have indicated intentions of taking a hand in the struggle have decided to wait.

The conference between Attorney General Daugherty and the president at Columbus, and the known fact that the department of justice here has been in constant touch with both during their absence, were taken as indications that the government's strike plan might be applied through this department.

Secretary Davis has replaced Secretary Fall as the government's representative at the anthracite conference. This change occurred Friday, and is understood to have been made to give Davis an opportunity to familiarize himself thoroughly with the exact nature of the deadlock in that quarter. With this information in hand, he is expected to have his contribution to the joint report ready some time Saturday.

Adjourns to Monday.

Previous to meeting the anthracite disputants Friday afternoon, Davis conferred in his private office with the anthracite operators Friday morning. He also conferred at length privately with Secretary Fall before the lengthy meeting was called to order. After a two-hour discussion, the meeting adjourned until next Monday afternoon, or earlier, subject to the call of James A. Gorman, secretary of the anthracite board of conciliation, who is also serving as secretary of the anthracite conference.

Davis is understood to have heard a review of the deadlock from both sides, and it was declared the controversy is exactly where it was, in New York, when the operators first proposed blanket arbitration by a presidential commission. Likewise, the miners are said to hold out on the same conditions they proposed in New

PRESENT GERMAN REGIME TOTTERS

Fall of the Government Threatens as Result of Political Crisis After Rathenau Assassination.

Washington, July 7.—The fall of the German government is threatened and stringent measures have been enacted for the protection of the republican regime, the commerce department was advised today in a cablegram from Commercial Attaché Herring at Berlin.

The political crisis resulting from the assassination of Foreign Minister Rathenau, Mr. Herring reported, has aggravated the period of currency depreciation inaugurated by the failure of the foreign loan negotiations and the feeling now is general that Germany faces grave political complications with the fall in exchange which dropped to the lowest level in history today.

The consideration by the reichstag of important legislation, he said, including the forced loan bill and grain subsidy measure, was interrupted by the Rathenau incident and by the consequ

Savannah Man Has Held County Office 40 Years And Is Still on the Job

Savannah, Ga., July 7.—(Special.) William Harden yesterday completed his fortieth year as clerk to the treasurer of Chatham county, the only man who ever held that position.

No other official of the county has held an office for that period of time. One other man is living who was an official in the Chatham courthouse when Mr. Harden went into office—Major C. S. Hardee, present city treasurer, and 83 years old, is serving his thirty-fifth year in that place.

Major Hardee was county clerk when Major Harden went into the treasurer's office 40 years ago.

A special committee, consisting of Councilmen J. R. Nutting, C. L. Ashley and W. O. Davis will appear before the municipalities committee of the house of representatives Tuesday to urge prompt action on the bill to change Atlanta's charter, amendments to which were ratified by voters in the recent special election.

The amendments consist of a number of important changes in the charter, among which are abolition of the present board of education, and the creation of a new board, composed of one member from each ward, chosen

Prejudice Has No Place

In Legislative Discussion

Of State Highway Status

BY JAMES A. HOLLOMON

Representative McMichael, of Marion county, took another broadside at the administration of the state highway department yesterday.

During the 1921 session of the assembly, a special joint committee, consisting of 18 members of the two houses, was appointed to investigate the affairs of the highway commission and to report back to the assembly.

The work was begun at once, public hearings held and an auditor, a certified public accountant, employed to check up and audit, specifically for the committee, the books and accounts of the department.

It must be remembered that long before this the member from Marion had opened up a veritable barrage against the department, and against the road program, and against everything else, practically, that the majority stood for in highway development in Georgia.

All right—the joint committee did not conclude its work until the 21st session, and the overwhelming majority—fourteen out of eighteen, if I recall correctly—signed a majority report setting forth their findings to the effect, first, that only one county in Georgia had filed any complaint against the department, and that investigation absolved the state commission of any blame in that connection; second, that the distribution of the funds had shown the bulk of them had gone to the weaker counties; third, that the cost of engineering, construction and maintenance; fifth, that criticisms of department officials or "bad judgment" were unwarranted, and that organization had been properly perfected to cover the immense amount and variety of work incident to its legalized functions.

The majority report concluded: "It is indeed a pleasure to find that the highway department has been in the hands of men who we believe to have the best interests of the state and its people at heart, and are doing everything possible toward the upbuilding of the state, and in our opinion, if allowed to continue, will give to Georgia one of the best highway systems in the South."

What are the facts regarding the Elbert county road? The entire highway commission and it is composed of as good and honorable men as there are in Georgia—has authorized the statement that the quarry is everything that is expected and hoped for when purchased.

The stone is said to be of excellent grade and is unsurpassed by any other in the South for road construction purposes. This statement is borne out by the state geologist, B. M. Hall, the noted engineer, and by a New York expert who made personal inspection of this quarry and a report on same before its purchase.

It is also ideally situated for economical production of stone for road construction purposes, and the plans for converting this great deposit of stone into road-building material is gradually being carried out. It has never ceased since its purchase.

The installation of equipment and the perfection of the plant has not been rushed on a moment's notice, but a firm bureau has been organized in Monroe county for assisting the farmers in solving the new problems and difficulties arising from the new road program.

The plant has already received or been allotted equipment and material of an estimated value of $75,000.00.

In view of the fact that the cost of crushed stone has gradually decreased since this property came into the hands of the state highway department, there has not been the same necessity for rushing the completion of this plant.

This plant, when completed, will produce a minimum of 500 tons of crushed stone a day—and this is evidence enough that the cost to Georgia is less than the cost to the people of the best road material available.

All of these are serious matters—matters of no small importance to the people of Georgia, and they are matters of no small importance to the people of Georgia.

The greatest constructive program before Georgia today is highway development.

The department should be encouraged in its work, so long as it is efficiently and honestly administered, and not retarded by the whims of disinterested persons or by the selfish interests of a few.

What is this thing called "prejudice"? It is the worst enemy that a man has, and it is the worst enemy that a man has.

A. & M. COLLEGE WORK IS LAUDED

Work of the twelve agricultural and mechanical colleges in Georgia is highly lauded in the report of a special joint committee of the senate and house, appointed last year to study operations and results of these district institutions, and the committee's findings will be submitted in both houses of the legislature next week.

When the resolution to name the committee was introduced a sentiment appeared to prevail that some of the colleges were lagging far behind and it might be found advisable to either change the system or do away with some of the colleges.

"The committee very earnestly desires to emphasize the fact," states the report, "that after a careful examination of each of the institutions and the work they are doing, individually and as a chain of state colleges, it is our conviction that the system and the colleges as units, are filling a very peculiar need in the state."

"Instead of entertaining for a moment an idea that even one of them should be done away with, it is our conviction that they should be given just as much legislative encouragement as possible, now and in the future."

"Without them there is an element of the growing youth of the state that would be wholly without opportunities and advantages which these colleges supply, and our rural sections would hereafter feel acutely the suffering that would be bound to follow any absence of this particular line of work."

Continuing, the report said: "This committee especially concerned itself to ascertain what direct return there is to the farming enterprises of the state from the several A. & M. colleges and we find, by actual investigation of records, that approximately 70 per cent of the graduates of these institutions have returned to farming life and engaged in some form of farm work."

"More than 2,000 students are given instruction at these institutions, and we find an average of about 20 students in each of the schools are paying their way through by work they are doing."

Course of instruction. In respect to the course of instruction, the committee said it found each of the colleges conforming strictly with the requirements laid down by the legislature.

According to the report, the twelve colleges are equipped with live stock, as follows: 16 horses, 49 mules, 215 cows, 507 hogs; also farm equipment valued at $28,000.

"If there is in contemplation any change in the laws governing the district A. & M. colleges," concludes the report, "it is the judgment of this committee that such contemplated changes should be very earnestly and carefully weighed before they are made, and whatever changes are made should be of a nature that will undoubtedly make for the encouragement and improvement of the chain of educational institutions."

The committee is composed of Senator Golucke, of the 19th, chairman; Senator Hutchins, of the 25th, and Representatives Russell, of Barrow, and Camp, of Campbell.

ATHENS MAN LEASES LEXINGTON TERMINAL

Athens, Ga., July 7.—(Special.)—Agreement has been reached between C. N. Hodgson, of Athens, and Georgia railroad for the former to take over and operate the Lexington Terminal railroad, it is announced by Mr. Hodgson.

Plans are now being considered to extend the line to Dryfork creek on the Wilkes and Oglethorpe county lines and in the midst of one of the largest timber tracts in the south. The purpose of extending the railroad is to develop the famous "Flat Woods" section, noted for its timber and mineral resources. The "Flat Woods" is a large tract of land, which extends from South Carolina across the state of Georgia into Alabama. The lands are very fertile, as the soils are the same as in Alabama.

R. C. Campbell, of the Georgia railroad states that this extension will be a private one on the part of the farm owners and will be a logging road.

YOUTHFUL CONVICTS DASH FOR FREEDOM

Harold Freeman, whose address is given by police officials as Grant street, and Marion Stewart, who lives on Lovejoy street, convicted working on the Roosevelt road near Nancy's Creek bridge, made their escape shortly after noon Friday in a high-powered car belonging to W. N. Harris, oil inspector.

The boys eluded the guards, made their way to Mr. Harris' car, and started the engine, the owner having forgotten to remove his keys. The convicts headed towards Atlanta while the efforts of the guards to stop them proved of no avail.

Freeman is said to be 16 years old and was serving a sentence of 12 months for burglary. Stewart is 19 years of age, and was serving a term of six months for violation of the prohibition law. Both had been at the Sandy Springs camp since April 3.

PRATT IS PREDICTED AS NEW TECH HEAD

Election of Dr. N. P. Pratt as president of the Georgia School of Technology at the meeting of the board of trustees July 4 was predicted Friday by supporters of Dr. Pratt, who is a well-known metallurgical engineer of Atlanta, and who is now acting as head of Tech, asserted that he would be elected on the first ballot over a field of five possible nominations. He has served as acting president of the institution since the resignation of Dr. K. G. Matheson became effective.

Among others whose names have been mentioned as successors to Dr. Matheson are Dr. M. L. Brittain, state superintendent of schools; Dr. A. H. Patterson, of Chapel Hill, N. C.; Dr. Charles M. Strahan, of the University of Georgia, and ex-Governor Brough, of Arkansas.

ATHENS HAS BECOME ARMY HEADQUARTERS

Athens, Ga., July 7.—(Special.)—Headquarters of the "whispering" division trains were opened in Athens today with the arrival of Major Arthur L. McCoy, of the quartermasters corps. The division trains are manned by 19 officers and over 700 men. Main headquarters will be located at Columbia, S. C., though it is understood that local quarters will have complete charge over the movement of the train of the division, detachments of which are located in various cities of Georgia.

SHACKELFORD OPENS ATHENS HEADQUARTERS

Athens, Ga., July 7.—(Special.)—With the departure of R. F. Wright, of Elberton, campaign headquarters have been opened for Tom Shackelford, who is expected within the next few days to announce his candidacy for congress from this district. He will oppose Judge Charles H. Brand, the present incumbent, who is in Athens, following the recess of the national legislative body.

Ellis on Vacation.

Judge W. D. Ellis, of Fulton superior court, candidate to succeed himself in the primary of September 13, left Friday night for Charleston, S. C., for a short vacation. Judge Ellis has been sitting on the bench continuously since the first of last September, with the exception of three weeks.

Senate Sidelights

BY HENSON TATUM

By unanimous vote, the senate adopted a resolution Friday introduced by Senators Thorpe, For, Campbell, Jones, of the 33rd; Hutchins, Clay, Cone and Fleming, extending an invitation to United States Senator William J. Harris to address the present session of the general assembly at a convenient date.

The tax equalization filibuster, in its second day Friday, settled down to furious sparring between the repeal and anti-repeal forces, with now and then some member springing a hair-splitting parliamentary point. Every slightest opening left by either side found some senator of the opposition trying to break through.

After Senator Johnny Jones had voted to sustain an appeal from the chair's ruling on a point raised by Senator Snow, another leader of the filibuster faction, he gained the floor on a point of personal privilege and tossed a nosegay at President Clay, whom he complimented as having to his credit as a presiding officer the "highest average of impartiality and fairness." He denied that he was aligned with any organized group in the senate and said he regretted to have to disagree with the president's ruling.

"A point of order," interposed Senator Nix, rising. The senator can not rise to a point of personal privilege and then use this privilege to explain his vote."

"I would so hold," replied President Clay, "but the senator from the 37th is saying so many nice things about the chair that the chair refrains from ruling him out of order." Everybody laughed and the filibuster went merrily on.

Senator O. W. Fleming, "filibuster," had been speaking more than an hour when the time of adjournment arrived Thursday, and he was prepared to halt it indefinitely Friday while he read verbatim all the bills set down on the calendar for consideration.

Seated for his comfort, Johnny Jones secured a pitcher of ice water and set it on the senator's desk. "It's the best I can do for you," he said, with a tinge of regret in his voice.

Privilege of Floor. Privileges of the senate floor were extended to several citizens yesterday, among them being Mrs. W. H. Fulton, of Cartersville; Judge George Gobert, of Marietta; Miss Bessie Kempton, newspaperwoman and candidate for Fulton county legislator, and Mrs. Edgar Alexander.

It is rumored among the senators that Representative J. W. Culpepper, of Fayette county, will become a candidate for speaker of the house in the race next summer.

Senator J. E. Weaver, of the 11th, was a late arrival for the session, making his first appearance among his colleagues Friday.

John R. Phillips, of Jefferson county, running without opposition for senator from the 18th, looked in on proceedings for an hour or two Friday.

Tifton Judge Raps Tendency to Ignore Laws of the State

Tifton, Ga., July 7.—(Special.) Judge Eve took sharp issue with the saying that "All's Well With the World," in his charge to the grand jury of Tift superior court.

"God in His heaven but man's not in his," Judge Eve said, discussing recent outbreaks of violence, prevailing disregard for the law and what he declared the disposition of individuals and organizations of individuals to attribute to themselves the right to hold the law in contempt; to dispense justice or injustice, as they see fit, and to tramp, at will, on the personal rights of the citizens.

Selfishness and extravagance were discussed as among the most dangerous prevailing evils. The responsibility of the individual for the proper regulation of local affairs was suggested by the court as the surest remedy, and insisted the citizen must be awakened to a realization of this fact.

"A heavy burden of responsibility rests upon you not only in your public capacity, but also in your private capacity," he said.

"As responsible beings, you are daily serving on the mighty grand jury of law abiding citizens of the nation, charged of God himself, with the duty of maintaining high standards of civic righteousness and upholding law and order—of proclaiming the gospel of obedience to law."

"You cannot be put away from the world—in fact if you are by political faction, and as a citizen of the world, you are bound by obligations to the universal brotherhood. Preach everlastingly the gospel of obedience to law. It is all right to interest yourself in the lamentable conditions of the people of Slum and Tenement, but don't overlook the man in the alley back of you. He may be as financially poor and physically forsaken as the man across the street."

"One form of law-breaking is like shooting out panes of glass, on the top floor of a building; another is like dynamiting the foundations of the structure. When men dynamite dipping vats, they are striking at the foundation on which the structure of our civilization rests."

Unions and secret organizations are all right and in many respects good things so long as they stay within the law, and so long only as the other fellows rights are not trodden on."

CAPTAIN J. A. GLOVER DIES LATE FRIDAY

Rome, Ga., July 7.—(Special.) Captain John A. Glover, aged 76 years, one of this section's most distinguished citizens and capitalists, died at 4 o'clock Friday afternoon at a local hospital after an illness of three days.

Parting.

"Jimmy Burke's Tavern!" shouted a hoarse voice.

"You're there, me gay galloper!" came Burke's bantering voice.

"Ah-l," retorted the express, "fetch a drink for me and tell me there's a Mr. Drogue lodging here."

I still had Penelope's hand in mine as in the grip of a vise, so excited was I, when the express came stamping up the stairs.

"You are Mr. Drogue, sir?"

"I am."

He promptly saluted, fished out a letter from his sack and offered it.

"Twice I read the letter before I twisted it to a torch and burned it in the candle flame."

Then I called out to the express: "Say to the personage who sent you hither that his letter is destroyed, and his orders shall be instantly obeyed."

"Do you leave tonight?" Penelope asked calmly.

"Yes, immediately."

She cast a glance at my rifle standing in the corner.

The moment of parting was here. It seemed as if I were being torn apart.

"Good-bye, John Drogue," said Penelope.

Her voice was steady, and her hand, too, where it lay passively in mine. But it quivered and caught my fingers convulsively when I kissed her; and crept up along my fringed sleeve to my shoulder-cape, and grasped the green thumbrs.

And now her arm lay tightly around my neck, and I looked down into the white face I ever had gazed upon.

"I love you dearly," I said, "and am deep in love. . . . I want you, Penelope Grant."

"I want you," she said.

"Such an engagement, my dear, I want you to witness, Penelope Grant."

Back on the Trail.

Suddenly in the purple dusk, three Indians rose up and barred my way.

And I saw, with joy, my three Onecidas.

So deeply the encounter affected me that I could scarce speak as I pressed their extended hands, one after another, and felt their eager, caressing touch on my arms and shoulders.

"Brother," they said, "we are happy to be chosen for the scout under your command. We are contented to have you with us again."

"Come, then," said I in a shaky voice, "we people of the Rock must march on the Gates of Sunset. If my fate lies there, why then I am due to die in that place! . . . Make ready, Onecidas!"

Then when all had completed painting the Little Red Foot on their bodies, I stepped swiftly ahead of them and turned northwest.

"March," I said in a loud voice.

That night we lay near an old trail which I knew ran to Oteago.

And on this trail, early the following morning, we encountered two men whom my Indians, instead of talking as they should have done, instantly shot down. Which betrayed their inexperience in war; and I rated them roundly.

The two dead men were blue-eyed Indians in all the horror of their shameful paint and forest dress.

I know one of them, for when Tashini washed their lifeless visages and laid them on their backs, there, to my hot indignation, I beheld young Thomas Hare, brother to Lieutenant Henry Hare and to Captain James Hare, of the Indian Service.

I know not how it chanced that I erred in my scouting and lost direction, but on the tenth day of August, my Indians and I came out into a grassy place where trees grew thinly.

The first thing I saw was an Indian, hanging by the heels from a tree.

And everywhere, we beheld evidences of the Oriska combat, for here lay a soldier's empty knapsack, and yonder a ragged shirt, and there a resting tin cup, and here a boot all bloody and slit to the toe.

And now, looking about me, I suddenly comprehended that we were in a most perilous region and must proceed with every caution, for in this forest Brant's Ironclads must be roaming everywhere in the rear of the troops which had invested Stauwiz.

My Onecidas understood this without explanation from me; and they all also became further alarmed when suddenly Tashini touched my arm.

"O, my white captain," she stammered, clinging to me in her excitement, "here is the place! Here I saw strange uniforms and cannon smoke—and a strange white shape—and you—O, Hahyon—my captain!"

I looked around me, suddenly chilled and shivering in spite of the heat of a summer afternoon. But I perceived nobody except my Onecidas. Below I could see the new road curving sharply to the eastward. But nobody moved down there, there was not a sound to be heard, not a movement in the forest. All around us was still as death.

The road appeared to end abruptly.

perceive until they happen—the shadow of events to come.

After a silence: "Have you, perhaps discovered other shadows since we last met, Penelope?"

"Yes; shadows."

"What coming event cast them?"

For us the last king has sat upon a throne; the last privilege has been accorded to the last and noble drone; the last slave's tax has long been paid.

Well, we are here in the Highlands, my sweetheart-wife and I. . . . I now wear the regimentals of a contingency.

Gates, now mourns his laurels wears his willows, and sits alone, a broken and preposterous man.

I think no day passes but I thank God for my Lord Stirling, for our wise Generals, Greene and Knox and Wayne, for the gallant young marquis so loved and trusted by his excellency.

But war is long—oh, long and wearying—and a dismal and vexing business for the most.

I, being in garrison at this fortress, which is the keystone of our very liberties, find that, in barracks as in the field, every hour brings its anguish and its harassing duties.

Yet, thank God, I have some hours of leisure. . . . Penelope and I have leased a pretty cottage within our works—and our two children seem wondrous healthy and content. . . . Both have yellow hair.

THE END.

Side Talks by Ruth Cameron

ON MAKING FRIENDS.
A pathetic letter has come to me from a girl who says she can't make friends. She says she has done everything she can think of, tried to be always pleasant, polite and willing to keep a pleasant expression on her face. She had invited people to her home and joined clubs, but all to no avail—people just don't seem to be interested in her.

She signs herself "Heartbroken" and begs me to tell her something she can do to change this state of affairs.

What shall I say to her?
How does one make friends if friends just won't naturally make themselves?

Personality a Magnet.
Personality is the natural friend-maker. If you have it you will make friends without effort. You may not keep them if you do not have certain virtues to back it, but you will go on making them so long as you have the magnet of a vivid personality.

But personality is a comparatively rare gift and almost everyone has friends. What then are the qualities that win them?

A cheerful disposition unquestionably helps, a jolly disposition still more so. We are always glad to meet the person who looks at life in a jolly good-humored way, and gets us into the same mood. "Laugh and the world laughs with you"—and to laugh together helps make people friends.

Like People.
A friendly disposition is another magnet to draw people to you. If you like people and do not merely want to have them like you, they will sense the warmth of that feeling and be attracted by it. "The only way to have a friend is to be one."

Of the artificial ways of winning friends none, I think, is more successful than to cultivate the habit of being a good listener. Find out what subjects people are interested in, get them to talk about them and then listen intelligently. Listening doesn't simply mean keeping quiet while the other person talks. It means listening actively, understanding what they are saying, being interested in it, making intelligent replies, drawing them out, giving them a chance to present themselves and their doings in a good light. "Father came home saying he had had a wonderful time," a friend of mine whose father was an officer in the civil war said to me the other day, "and I knew that meant father had gotten someone to listen to his war stories." You can easily see what qualities father would value in a new acquaintance.

She Is Pressing.
Don't think too much about yourself. That's fatal even if you are only thinking about yourself as a friend-maker. I imagine that's one of the troubles with this girl who says she can't make friends. She ought to get her mind off herself and stop trying so hard to make friends, and that would doubtless help her to make them. In golf when a man tries too hard to hit the ball he often defeats his own game. That is called pressing. The conscious gets in the way of the unconscious and inhibits it. That's just what I think is happening to this girl—she is pressing. If she will decide that it doesn't matter so much after all that she will be interested in her work and her family, find pleasure in outdoor life and in reading, and in the morning, and in observing other people, perhaps that will help her to relax and be more natural, and in the end get what she wants.

Hall-Wilson Memorial, Built at Hartford, Conn., Model Hospital Annex

The Hall-Wilson Memorial building, an Hartford, Conn., erected by Mrs. John C. Wilson, formerly of Atlanta, in memory of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. John H. Hall, and her husband, the late John C. Wilson, is in operation according to Mrs. Hall-Wilson, who has just returned to Atlanta from the dedication ceremonies.

Mr. Wilson was, for many years, a prominent citizen of Atlanta. The building that is a memorial to him, is a handsome three-story structure, built in connection with the Hartford hospital. It contains a completely refrigerated morgue, an autopsy room, 12 laboratories, sleeping quarters, and a museum for specimens of small animals.

The dedication was presided over by Bishop Charles E. Woodcock, of Louisville, Ky., and took place June 26. Mrs. Coleman says the memorial is an unusually beautiful edifice.

AT WOMAN'S WINDOW
BY W. L. GEORGE

We often come across a middle-aged woman, fairly well dressed, fairly well-spoken, who causes us as we come to know her to wonder for what reason she is alive. She has a little money of her own; she lives in some family or in a boarding house; she is not well-off enough to go to the country very often; she plays a little bridge and goes to the movies. There really seems no reason why she should be, for neither house, children, art or social service claim her. She is doing this at forty, will do it at fifty, perhaps at seventy. And so far as one can see she will be neither very happy nor unhappy in the doing.

The more I meet such women, the more I become convinced that they need to take hold of their lives and decide as soon as they can what they will do with them. Most people accept life as something that happens, while in reality it is something one causes to happen, which can be filled or left vacant. The middle-aged woman with money of her own has a wonderful privilege; she can decide what she would like to do, and it is tragic when she decides to do nothing. She must face the future, realize that she will grow duller, less and less employed, that life will not be worth while. Well, she must fill it. She must find something to do that is worth doing. She can go on the committee of her club and there do work worth doing. She can open a shop and enjoy all the excitement of modern commerce. Perhaps she can write a book. Or she may initiate a movement for beautifying her city or caring for its children. What ever she does will be well done if she wants to do it. The only regrettable attitude is to decide nothing at all.

THEY KEEP THEIR NAMES OVER THEIR HEARTS
Tis said there's nothing in a name, but just the same women seem to be pretty keen right now, if not about their names, certainly about their monograms. The cleverest blouses, to say nothing of frocks, have no trimming save mild monogram embroidered over her heart.

THE HOME IN GOOD TASTE

By Harold Donaldson Eberlein
Joint Author of "Practical Book of Interior Decoration," Etc.

No. 12—Cool Colors.

Blue—the third of the so-called primary colors—is known as a "cool" or "receding" color. It is called "cool" or "receding" because it creates a quieting impression of coolness and repose and because blue or bluish surfaces seem to recede or go away from you. For example, on a blue surface with a red pattern, the pattern stands out and comes at you; on a red surface with a blue pattern the pattern seems to sink and go away, while the background comes forward.

All other colors in whose composition blue is the prevailing element belong likewise in the "cool" class and share the "receding" qualities according to the amount of blue that enters into their makeup. Thus, green, in which there is more blue than yellow, is a bluish or cool green, and violet in which there is more blue than red is a bluish or cool violet.

In rooms with walls of a warm or advancing color, the walls seem to come together toward you, according to the degree of warmth in their coloring. Cool-colored walls seem to recede. Hence, warm-colored walls make a room smaller than it really is; cool-colored walls make it seem larger.

6-YEAR-OLD GIRL AND BOY OF 16 GET BROKEN ARMS

Mildred Morrow, the 6-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. M. Morrow, of 150 Lucile avenue, and Mack Parker, 10, of 92 Curran street, were carried to the Grady hospital early Friday afternoon suffering with broken arms.

The little Morrow girl had her right arm fractured in a fall while playing with little comrades in front of her home. It is claimed that one of the children, either knocked a stick, was leaning on from under her, or that it slipped.

Parker's arm was broken during a scuffle he had with Marvin Ray, 16, of Warren avenue, at Broad and Hunter streets. Ray was painfully hurt about the head, and was given medical aid in a nearby drug store, after which he went home.

X-ray examinations of the broken limbs did not disclose any serious breaks, and the little girl and Parker were allowed to go home, after their arms were placed in splints.

DRESS BY ANNE RITTENHOUSE

Although Women Are Giving Up Red To Some Extent, Little Boys Are Adopting It As a Way to Make Themselves Gay and Comely in the General Burst of Color During Summer Weather.

There is no reason in the world why a small boy should not wear a Chinese tunic if he likes it. Few of our small boys have done it, but that's no argument against it. It is a cool garment and a gay one when it is made in linen and embroidered in leather. When it is of serge, it is protective for cool days that really do come in the country and at the seashore.

The sketch shows such a blouse worn by a small boy. It is curiously like the jumper blouses offered for women. It has a bit of a flare at the hem instead of a band which hugs the hips, but if the band were there, there would be little room for the trousers. As it is, the bright red tunic must flare a bit to show the blue linen trousers that are merely bathing trunks.

It is this glimmer of blue that suggests the gay leather trimming on the red blouse. It is of blue kid, dull and ornamental. Stripes of it are run over the shoulders and wide pockets are put on each side so that playthings have a resting place.

The little round hat that goes with the blouse is of red and blue linen, and it just saves itself from being a foot-cap by the slight roundness of the crown.

There is no diminution in the effort to keep children as uncluttered as the law allows. Their knees and several inches above them are exposed to bumps and bruises that life offers to the young. The socks only go half way to the knees, and sandals are round of toe and flat of sole.

Arms bare, but if they are caught young and put into sleeveless tunics they enjoy the comfort of arm freedom until they have eaten of the tree of knowledge and have a manly shame at being dressed up like a girl.

It is not possible to provide a boy with many tunics trimmed with soft leather, so it is wise to keep this red advancing color, the walls seem to come together toward you, according to the degree of warmth in their coloring. Cool-colored walls seem to recede. Hence, warm-colored walls make a room smaller than it really is; cool-colored walls make it seem larger.

6-YEAR-OLD GIRL AND BOY OF 16 GET BROKEN ARMS

Mildred Morrow, the 6-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. M. Morrow, of 150 Lucile avenue, and Mack Parker, 10, of 92 Curran street, were carried to the Grady hospital early Friday afternoon suffering with broken arms.

The little Morrow girl had her right arm fractured in a fall while playing with little comrades in front of her home. It is claimed that one of the children, either knocked a stick, was leaning on from under her, or that it slipped.

Parker's arm was broken during a scuffle he had with Marvin Ray, 16, of Warren avenue, at Broad and Hunter streets. Ray was painfully hurt about the head, and was given medical aid in a nearby drug store, after which he went home.

X-ray examinations of the broken limbs did not disclose any serious breaks, and the little girl and Parker were allowed to go home, after their arms were placed in splints.

THE HOUSEWIFE'S Idea Box

To exterminate ants in the home. During the summer ants are likely to prove very troublesome in the kitchen or pantry. To exterminate them, try the following method: Place cayenne pepper in the places that are frequented by the little pests. Scrub all shelves where they are likely to go with carbolic soap. I am sure you will find this helpful.

Reduction in Fares For School Children And Teachers Argued

A petition seeking one-half fare on street cars for school children and teachers was filed Friday before the Georgia railroad commission by James L. Mayson, city attorney. Hearing on the petition will be held within the next few days, it was announced, and the commission is expected to render a decision before commencement of schools in September.

The petition sets forth that many progressive cities throughout the country have such a system whereby school children and teachers are permitted to ride to and from school on the one-half fare plan and that a number of states, including Massachusetts, Connecticut and Texas, have state laws providing for one-half fare for them.

The movement to reduce street car fares for school children and teachers originated here last fall when the Forrest Avenue School association, of which Mrs. M. E. Ailes is president, adopted resolutions urging that steps be taken in this regard. Since that time virtually all of the local parent-teacher associations and civic organizations have endorsed the movement. Mass meetings were held and a committee was appointed to appear before the officials of the Georgia Railway and Power company and ask for the reduction. This was done, the committee being informed by the power officials it would be practicing discrimination to adhere to the request.

The Involuntary Vamp

by Mildred Barbour

Who's Who in the Story.

Diana Langley, who possesses a superlative degree of "vampirism" wished for her at birth by her youthful aunt, Marjorie Langley, herself a noted beauty, whom Stephen Dale, a wealthy bachelor, has been devoted for years. Impetuously declares her love for Dale, and on being told by him that he can never marry because of a trace of insanity in his family, to soothe her pride, elopes with and marries Alex Leigh, a young naval officer, at the same time that Ted Saunders, a hopeless suitor of Diana's hand, marries Sylvia Bennett, a friend of Diana's, inclined to "catfishness." On her way to California with her husband, Diana meets Lynn Johnston, an old acquaintance, and with him is accidentally left behind when the limited pulls out of a New Mexican town. They are picked up by a Spaniard named Dominguez, who makes Johnston, a prisoner, and a slave for his property's sake, a prisoner, and tries to marry her, but she escapes, only to meet with a worse adventure, in her second escape, she is badly hurt, but is rescued by Dr. Maxwell Borden, who with his sister, Cynthia Borden, are people with a mysterious past in which Dale and his death are somewhat concerned. Borden falls in love with Diana, who is determined to return to Alex. Dominguez is also persistent and Dale, who finally finds her, shows signs of capitulation to her irresistible charm. Under the circumstances, Dale finds it wisest to go away forever. But at Diana's request he goes to Dominguez's house to find Johnston. That night a man tries to enter Diana's window, suspecting that it is Dominguez, the doctor decides to take Diana away for safety. On the way to the railroad station they make a discovery.

INSTALLMENT NO. 60.

New Doubt.

Doctor Borden bought the pony to a halt while his sister and Diana looked at him, half frightened. "I think it is a man," he said briefly, nodding to a dark shapeless object on the roadside. "Take the reins, will you, Diana, while I go and see what ails the poor devil." Diana devoted the reins silently, her glance, turning reluctantly toward the motionless object.

But when the doctor reached it and turned it over, she looked away with a little shudder.

"She heard a low whistle from the doctor."

"Stabbed through the heart, poor chap! Death must have been instantaneous," he said after a minute. "Do you know who he is?" asked Cynthia. The doctor shook his head. "Never saw him before!"

"Do you need any help? What are you going to do with him?"

"There's nothing to do. We'll stop at Jansen's, the first ranch-house we pass, and have him look after things. If he stays any longer we're likely to miss the limited."

"I say," he said slowly after a minute, and bent closer over the prostrate form.

"Diana, will you come here a minute please?"

Wonderingly, Diana obeyed. In spite of herself, she approached shakingly.

"I'm sorry to subject you to this, dear, although there's really nothing terrible about this poor devil. He's dead, that's all. But the knife that did it—Diana, you have seen Dominguez several times. Could this possibly be the knife he wears in that leather belt of his? Can you recognize the hilt?"

"A weird discovery."

Diana, conquering her aversion, bent over, only to start back with a little cry.

"Is it?" demanded the doctor.

"That man!" Diana pointed a shaking finger. "It's that awful creature who picked me up that night when I was stumbling along in the darkness after I had run away from Dominguez!"

"The one whose wagon you jumped from?"

She nodded.

"And when I told Dominguez about it the other day, he looked—frightful. I knew he'd already done away with one of his servants who took the money, Lynn Johnston had smuggled to me."

"Then it was likely Dominguez who did this job," said the doctor. "I should judge that the man has been dead about twelve or fourteen hours. If that was Dominguez who tried to climb into your window last night—and there's no shadow of a doubt but what it was—he evidently met this fellow on his trail, dispatched him, and rode on to our house."

The doctor smiled at her quizzically.

"Well, Diana, here's another added to your list of victims."

"Oh, don't!" pleaded Diana, hushing her hand across her eyes. "I feel like a Borgias."

"Come, come, I don't mean to upset you," said the doctor comforting. "This fellow probably deserved all he got. Besides, if Dominguez chooses to appoint himself to go about avenging insults to fair ladies it's hardly your fault. Except in so far as you are responsible for your irresistible charm," he added smiling. "Come away, dear, before this unnerves you."

An Uneasy Conscience.

During the remainder of the long hot drive to the railroad station, there was little conversation. Each of the three were busy with thoughts. To Diana, the miles that unfolded in endless dim-colored panoramas before the fat little pony's joggling feet were filled with reproaches and recriminations.

Why had she told Dominguez about her encounter with the other man? If it hadn't been for that revelation, he might be alive today!

But after all—the comforting thought occurred to her—there was no certainty about their suspicion that it had been Dominguez who killed the man. There was something instinctive about the knife which had been driven to the hilt in the poor chap's heart, but she could not recall that it bore any likeness to the knife

HOW TO SAVE WHEN SHOPPING

By Ruth Leigh

Author of "The Human Side of Retail Selling," "The A B C of Retailing," Etc.

Until a few years ago, we got most of our sugar from the sugar cane. Do you know that now over half of the sugar used in the world is obtained from the sugar beet? Some people think that the beet root is less satisfactory for many purposes than the sugar cane, but it is identical chemically.

You find cane sugar on the market in various forms. Ordinary powdered sugar is, of course, the same substance as granulated sugar, but more finely ground. Some housewives think powdered sugar is adulterated because it is less sweet than granulated sugar, but the lack of sweetness is simply due to the sugar's finely divided condition.

Here is a simple test you can make to see if powdered sugar is adulterated with some form of porcelain clay or starch. Dissolve the sugar in water. If it dissolves readily, you may be sure that no foreign substances are present, because adulterations will not mix with the water and their presence can be easily detected.

Many inexperienced housewives do not know exactly what brown sugar is. That which you buy in stores is simply cane sugar that has not been decolorized or has been only partially so treated.

Every housewife should know something of the adulterations, harmless and otherwise, used in foods today. Monday's talk will prove enlightening. (Copyright, 1922, for the Constitution.)

Tax Equalization Battle Is Halted By Adjournment

At 12 o'clock Friday, warring factions in the senate filibuster against repeal of the tax equalization law, agreed to temporary cessation of hostilities and voted to adjourn until Monday morning at 11 o'clock. Anti-repeal leaders predicted they would be able to stave off action on the bill for several more days.

The filibuster of Thursday was resumed Friday morning, led by Senator Snow, who demanded that the journal be read. He then moved that the senate reconsider its action of the previous day in tabling the Womble bill calling for two-year elective terms for county officers instead of four. His motion was defeated.

He came back with a successful motion to have each of the bills introduced read in full. This required an hour and a half.

President Clay surrendered his gavel to take the floor and asked unanimous consent of the senate to take from the table where they were placed at the last session and restore them to the calendar, house bill No. 240, known as the budget bill, and senate measure No. 42, known as the pistol bill.

Grant Their Consent.

The filibustering group first ascertained that none of their rights to the floor would be interfered with and granted the consent.

After reading of the new bills was finished, Senator Fleming, who had the floor at time of adjournment Thursday, reading the bills that had been previously introduced, resuming his task. The opposing side then sought a conference and agreed on adjournment.

Senator Tarpley, of the thirty-sixth district, offered an important bill in the senate which would make it unlawful for two or more persons to form a combination or conspiracy to hinder or prevent any railroad, other concern or individual, from carrying on a lawful business in Georgia.

Picketing, boycotting or attempted boycott, intimidation or threats to prevent or interfere with the operation of lawful business, are expressly forbidden by the bill. Violations are punishable as for a misdemeanor.

To Save A. B. & A.

A feature of the session was the introduction of a resolution by Senators Manson, Akon, Thomas, Haralson, Thorpe and Tarpley, providing for a commission of nine members to be appointed by the governor to prevent the threatened junking of the A. B. & A. railroad. It was proposed that two members of the commission be named from the senate, three from the house and four from the state at large. The measure was referred to the committee on railroads.

As a substitute measure to the pending tax equalization repeal bill, Senator Golubev introduced a bill to tax all intangible property, such as notes and bonds, and provided that all property of this nature, if not returned for taxation, be forfeited to the state, when discovered.

Other new bills at the Friday session were:

A bill by Senator Bond, of the thirtieth, to amend the workmen's compensation law, placing the entire cost of the operation of the act on

MISS ELSIE CALMES

One year ago this month Miss Elsie Calmes left Atlanta to break into the theatrical world in New York. She proved such a success that she is now filling a contract with the Orpheum vaudeville circuit and has forty weeks of her contract to complete, which will take her to the Pacific coast. She is known to the profession as Ethel Parker, a name she preferred to use until she made good, but expects to play under her own name, beginning with the fall.

Miss Parker presents a captivating dancing act, in which she appears in exquisite costumes. She is a pupil of Reduce Rail Board.

A bill by Senator Thomas, of the third, to establish juvenile courts in the state.

A bill by Senator Manson, of the thirty-fifth, providing for the destruction of firearms and other weapons taken by arresting officers from violators of the law.

DAUGHTER HAD TO HELP MOTHER

Now Can Do All Her Household Alone Because Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound Helped Her

Jasper, Minn.—"I saw in the paper about Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and took it because I was having such pains in my stomach and through my back that I could not do my work. I had tried other medicines, but none did me the good that your Vegetable Compound did. Now I am able to do all my work alone while before I had my daughter staying at home to do it. I have told a number of friends what it has done for me and give you permission to use my letter as a testimonial."—Mrs. JESSE PETERSEN, Route 1, Jasper, Minn.

There is no better reason for your trying Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound than this—it has helped other women. So if you suffer from displacements, irregularities, backache, nervousness or are passing through the Change of Life remember this splendid medicine. What it did for Mrs. Petersen it may do for you.

The Vegetable Compound stands upon a foundation of nearly fifty years of service.

BEAUTY CHATS

CARBO-HYDRATE LEGS.

A food expert has recently written an interesting article which he calls "Carbo-hydrate Legs." He says that too much starch and sugar in the diet, that is too much carbo-hydrate, produce legs that lose their swiftness, and arms that begin to fail in strength after the thirtieth year, to say nothing of a heart that ceases to be youthful long before its time. Too much meat, too much white bread, too many potatoes and not enough fresh vegetables and fruit form a diet that is very stimulating at first, but one that will not keep a man or woman from going stale young.

Recent experiments on rats kept in revolving cages showed the following interesting results. The rats fed exclusively on meat went well at the beginning, but soon dropped from exhaustion. The rats fed exclusively on vegetables and whole wheat went slower but lasted twice as long. The rats fed on white bread and nothing else got nowhere at all.

The moral of all this is that if you want a great deal of stimulation and strength up to the time you are 30 live on meat and potatoes. If you want to keep the elasticity and suppleness of youth live on a moderate amount of meat and potatoes and a great deal of fresh fruit and fresh vegetables. If you want neither long life nor long youth feed yourself on starchy white bread.

It seems almost hopeless sometimes to make people realize the error of eating white bread. Mothers of growing children particularly make no effort to train the child whose tastes are forming, to like the delicious richness of bread made from the whole wheat grain. As a result the child may grow fat on starch, but his system will become overladen with acids.

All—as you have seen—you should have the doctor prescribe for you. You will overcome the tendency to a double chin if you keep the flesh firm.

M. N. The best thing that I know of to cure dandruff and correct other troubles with the scalp is the "Pilo-carpine Tonic" for which I will be glad to mail the formula to you on receipt of a stamped addressed envelope. I am pleased to hear that you have succeeded so well with the creams, and the one in which there is a quantity of almond oil will also serve as a night cream as it is very nourishing. There is no charge for the service.

M. J. K.—If you send me a stamped addressed envelope, I shall be glad to mail the cream and astringent formulas.

All inquiries addressed to Miss Forbes in care of the "Beauty Chats" department will be answered in these columns in their turn. This requires considerable time, however, owing to the great number received. So if a personal or quicker reply is desired, a stamped and self-addressed envelope must be inclosed with the question.—The Editor.

Speaking of Draperies

The houses and rooms and gardens you cannot forget fill treasured spots in your memory. It may be a hospitable-looking facade, or a comfortable grouping around a friendly hearth, or a hedge of lilacs. One does not forget such things.

But the chances are, if you seek until you find the secret that is magic for remembrance, it will be something that has to do with light and shade—patterned sunshine filtered through the curtains' colors across a floor, a shaft of moonglow against a wall, a flood of radiant morning light glorifying a doorway.

Windows should be curtained and doorways designed with this in view.

Do your draperies take into account sunshine and moonglow? Much of the beauty of the exterior as well as the interior of your house depends upon your curtains and draperies.

I made a funny joke one day. Oh, how I wish I'd never! For all my friends expect me now To keep on being clever.

ATC

During the remainder of the long hot drive to the railroad station, there was little conversation. Each of the three were busy with thoughts. To Diana, the miles that unfolded in endless dim-colored panoramas before the fat little pony's joggling feet were filled with reproaches and recriminations.

Why had she told Dominguez about her encounter with the other man? If it hadn't been for that revelation, he might be alive today!

But after all—the comforting thought occurred to her—there was no certainty about their suspicion that it had been Dominguez who killed the man. There was something instinctive about the knife which had been driven to the hilt in the poor chap's heart, but she could not recall that it bore any likeness to the knife

EMERY IS EX-MARINE

There is a quite and modest place, visiting Atlanta, this week-end, the Outfielder, Emery, of the Savannah Volunteers, to look at him one would not think that he had ever been through the woes of war, that he had been gassed, wounded and had cleared out a German dugout, single handed, in that memorable battle of Chateau Thierry. But he has a discharge certificate handed him by the Major General Commandant of the Marines, which attest to all this and more, and just before today's game at Ponce de Leon, Emery will receive his Victory medal from the hands of publicity

Sergeant Cassius R. Baumgardner, and Sergeant Charles G. Lovett, U. S. M. C., former buddies of the ex-marine and now members of the local recruiting detachment at room 510 Postoffice building.

It was in Chateau Thierry, that Emery cleaned out a dugout of four Germans, while he was a member of the Second division. He went through all the battles in which the Marines participated, and then returned home to be discharged with highest honors from the service. Emery, while known to Southern fandom as being an excellent outfielder, is also an experiof the ship subsidy bill, the tariff with its high schedules—these and a dozen other things which have made of the present congress one of the most unpopular in recent times, are said to have grated painfully on republican minds, and resulted in a decision of retrenchment.

According to the story today, Senator Lodge and his guests agreed it would be futile for the senate to spend at least three or four weeks debating the sodier bonus bill if President Harding is to veto that bill after passage. That would represent just so much time lost from the campaign. Accordingly, it is planned for the senate leaders to go to the white house, bring all possible pressure upon the president, and have him say what he wants to be done and what he intends to do. If he still insists on a sales tax as a means of financing the bonus and is determined to veto a bill otherwise framed, the president is expected to assume the responsibility of saying so and consenting that the en-fire wrangle go over until the short session.

To Lighten Load.

Meanwhile, the senators figure that when absent house members return here in August, they may be able to persuade President Harding to lighten the legislative load by throwing the ship subsidy over until the next session. Republican senators are said to feel that after the house members return, they can go to the president and tell him they have enough burdens to carry into the next campaign without explaining the reason for ship subsidy legislation and the taxation it will impose. If the president will consent to the sidetracking of these bills, the republican leaders of the senate will urge the opponents of the tariff bills to slow down on the debate, confine their discussion to the more important schedules of the bill, and make possible an adjournment of

But there is a current saying at the capitol around which chief interest centers, and that is this: If the bonus bill suffers another postponement, it will be dead as a legislative possibility, and there are few senators who believe that.

Locals Lose Second Game of Series to Vols 5 to 4

Crackers Fail to Hit With Tying Run on Third In Both Eighth and Ninth

Doc Smith Bumps One Under Scoreboard in Deep Center That Mike Burke Crawled After—Umps Says Triple.

BY MIKE THOMAS.

Yesterday afternoon the Atlanta Crackers failed to hit the offerings of "Red Rose" Lucas, and very naturally, they lost a ball game. They hit, but when they meant trying or winning runs, the locals failed to connect and the Vols walked away with the game 5 to 4. The score indicates the sort of a ball game it was—very interesting.

The teams put up interesting exhibitions, but the battle would have been much more interesting if one had not been so intent upon the Crackers winning. As it were, one moment the fans would be wildly enthusiastic—then would see winning runs crossing the plate in droves, and then some ball player in an Atlanta "monkey suit" would arise to the heights and fizzle a weak runner to the infield, or raise a three-base bunt to the pitcher. But after all, it was not a ball game that a rabid Atlanta fan would have liked—nor was it a game that could be recommended to a man with a weak heart.

It was ladies' day at the park and feminine fans turned out in force, and the cheering of the ladies should have brought home a victory for the locals. When the Crackers would start a rally and threaten to score, the fair sex could be heard about all the din at the ball park.

Moore Still Gets 'Em.

Eddie Moore is still knocking them kicking when they get into his territory, and before much longer the right-handed batters of this association are going to be hitting the home field exclusively that is if they intend to keep up their batting averages. Guy Guyon also made one or two mighty fine catches, in right, of balls that looked like real hits, and our old friend Eddie Hock picked out yesterday afternoon to prove to the fans that he was human, kicking one that allowed the Vols to score their first two runs.

Mayer had several hard chances, most of them of the variety that he hit short by the usual hard-hitters of the club, and Sammie, who was in his garden, would be out of luck on these short chances. However, Sammie was out there trying all the time, and should a hitting star of the afternoon fray be picked it would be a race between Sammie and "Doc" Smith. Mayer got three out of four and "Doc" slashed out the same percentage. Doc's victory in the ninth was the most thrilling, but Mayer's single to center in the third inning was mighty useful, for it tied up one ball game.

The Vols Score.

In the second inning after a very peaceable opener, Burke went out Wano to Bernsen. Bernsen singled to center. Morrow singled to left, Krehmeyer moved both runners up with his infield out and took muffin Winn's hit allowing Bernsen and Morrow to score.

The Crackers tied up the game in the third. "Doc" Smith banged one of Lucas' fast ones to the rightfield bank and went to second. Suggs went out. Hock hit to short and beat it out. Klugman, Bernsen, Krehmeyer, and Guyon walked filling the bases. Mayer singled to center and in the general tossing around of the ball following the hit Guyon went to third and Mayer to second. Bernsen couldn't produce anything in the hit line and the side retired.

The game rocked along until the

MAY RELEASE SCHREIBER TODAY

Macon, Ga., July 7.—(Special.)—Unless an officer from Boston arrives in Macon by 9 o'clock tomorrow morning with extradition papers for Dr. Eugene Schreiber, the physician will be given his release from the city jail, where he has been held for ten days.

A hearing on a writ of habeas corpus was scheduled to be held today before Ordinary Wiley, but was continued because the Boston officer, who was reported on the way to Macon, had not arrived.

"JACKS" CALL ON PROMOTER

Chicago, July 7.—Jack Dempsey and his manager, Jack Kearns, in spite of the flattering offer of $100,000 with privileges of 50 per cent of the gate receipts, to meet Harry Greb at Pittsburgh on labor day, had their eyes turned toward Floyd Fitzsimmons' new arena at Michigan City when they made their flying trip through Chicago last night en route to Syracuse, N. Y., where the champion is billed for an exhibition tilt with Les Darcy tonight.

When he announced the Pittsburgh offer and discussed the champion's affairs in general, Kearns said he had closed no contract with Fitzsimmons for labor day match with Bill Brennan or any other heavyweight, but Dempsey, who he next risks his crown, is anxious to have the bout at Michigan City.

Jack-Jess Match.

Frank Flourney, agent for Tex Rickard, was in the Dempsey party, and said a match between Dempsey and Jess Willard looked promising. Flourney was headed for New York to deliver Kearns' terms to Rickard. At Wichita, where Dempsey put on an exhibition the other day, Flourney met Ray Arches, representing Willard, and discussed the former champion's desire for a chance at the title he lost to Dempsey at Toledo.

Besides the Willard and Greb offer and the Brennan matter, Dempsey also has a chance at a consideration the case of Harry Wills, who thinks the heavyweight crown would fit well his kinky head. A match with the negro appeared to be a long way off, however.

Greb, the Pittsburgh light-heavyweight, whose more recent achievements include a decision over Tommy Gibbons, craves for a chance at the big title by risking the Dempsey wallop. Greb has felt the jab of the champion's mitt in training matches.

Paris, July 7.—Eugene Criqui, the French featherweight champion, established himself as the champion of all Europe when he knocked out Wynn, the Belgian boxer, in the twelfth round of a 20-round decision fight Friday night.

At first it was believed that Criqui had scored only a technical knockout, as it appeared that the umpire had stopped the bout to save the Belgian. The official explained, however, that he had finished the count over the Belgian as Wynn hung limp over the ropes. Wynn protested the decision.

An immense throng howled its praises of Criqui, who was as infatigable as a war, and was announced immediately that he would go right after a match with Johnny Kilbane, the featherweight champion, for the world's title.

Great Battle in Store When Norse Net Star Meets Frenchwoman

Long-Looked-for Meeting Today — Mlle. Lenglen Has Opportunity to Regain Lost Prestige.

Wimbledon, July 7.—The tennis devotees of Great Britain half-believe that Mrs. Molla Mallory has been purposely boxing the thousands of people who watched her in all her matches up to the semi-final, while holding her best play for the purpose of deceiving Mlle. Lenglen as to her real playing form.

This idea was born Friday as the crowd watched and the wires told thousands of other fans about the startling improvement in the American player's game as she disposed of Mrs. Beaumont, of England, 6-2, 6-2, in the semi-final round. As Mlle. Lenglen also disposed of her usual opponent, Mrs. Peacock, another Englishwoman, by 6-3, 6-1, the finals on Saturday will bring about the ideal match—the famous rivals of Forest Hills face to face over the net once more for a decisive contest as the culmination of their picturesque feud.

Mrs. Beaumont had defeated Mlle. Mallory in less important matches this summer on English courts and when she took her stand against the American entrant in the semi-final, the Britons had strong hopes of seeing her in the championship match. But as the game progressed and Mrs. Mallory dominated, there were whispers that this could not be the same Mrs. Mallory whom they had seen in the preliminary rounds. The American player's victory disclosed sensational overnight improvement.

Play Stopped by Rain.

She was all over the court and after making repeated shots which seemed almost impossible to return, she frequently forced Mrs. Beaumont to drive her ball into the net or out of bounds.

Rain interrupted the match and the courts were in no better condition than they have been heretofore, so the improvement in Mrs. Mallory's play cannot be explained in this way.

As long as there was a chance that a British woman might play in the final for the championship, the British were about neutral. They inclined slightly to Mrs. Mallory as the representative of an Anglo-American country as the Ladies' French of Mlle. Lenglen, notwithstanding that Mrs. Mallory in reality is a Norwegian.

Now, however, the sentiment seems to be overwhelmingly in Mrs. Mallory's favor but barring some unconventional termination of the contest, a most thrilling match is anticipated when these two take the star court sometime between 4 o'clock and 5 Saturday afternoon. They will be the third match of the Saturday program but the interest of the public subordinates all the others to this one.

Mrs. Peacock buoyed the British hopes of having a Briton in the final by giving Mlle. Lenglen a terrific tussle, particularly in the first set, in which she immediately took the first game. After losing the next four she captured the sixth and seventh and took the ninth. This match also was interrupted by rain. Mlle. Lenglen presented her usual spectacular appearance, coming out in a jumper of mauve.

MRS. MALLORY PLAYS SPECTACULAR GAME.

BY GERALD L. PATTERSON.

London, July 7.—In defeating Mrs. Beaumont in the semi-finals Friday Mrs. Molla Mallory exhibited the best game she has ever displayed in all her matches at Wimbledon. There was, of course, tremendous interest in the match as a result of the improvement that I saw in Mrs. Mallory's playing I am inclined to think that unless Mlle. Suzanne Lenglen plays with greater force she stands a good chance of losing her championship at last. Relying on the steadiness of the French young woman I think she will win but Mrs. Mallory now seems to be approaching perfection in her shots and she may repeat her victory of Forest Hills. I thought she was very close to her Forest Hills form Friday in defeating Mrs. Beaumont.

Mlle. Lenglen was much too steady for Mrs. Peacock who used to be the lady champion of India and who really plays a first rate game of tennis. The French player always appeared to have the game well in hand and trusted Mrs. Peacock to make the errors which decided the match. Rain interrupted the play just when Suzanne needed only a couple of points to finish the match.

Friday's contests require little description. Handicap Lyett's defeat of J. G. Gilbert in their semi-final match of the men's singles was very interesting to watch and after having seen Lyett beat so decisively at Forest Hills in 1919, I can only reflect on how lucky Lyett was that he did not have to meet M. Manuel Alonzo, the Spaniard, who was beaten early in the tournament by Brugnot, the Frenchman,

Artists Heard On WGM Program

Brunswick, Ga., July 7.—(Special.) Brunswick is now boasting of being the second city in Georgia to be equipped with a radio broadcasting outfit, and radio fans in this city and within a radius of 300 miles of Brunswick are being treated to concerts each night. Reports have already been received in the city from many nearby points that the concerts have been heard distinctly.

The broadcasting set has been installed by the Radio Assembly and Specialty company, a new local organization of which E. B. Arnold is manager, and the broadcasting outfit installed consists of a Westinghouse model TF machine of 20-watt capacity. Associated with the new company are a large number of local radio fans.

The outfit was tested during the last two nights and favorable reports were heard from a number of those near this city who have receiving sets. Starting tonight regular programs will be sent out each night, many of Brunswick's best known musicians to be included in the programs.

Brunswick already has a large number of receiving sets, while during the past few days the small boys and others have been busy with their homemade sets and are receiving the concerts from the local broadcasting station. Mr. Arnold has received his license as an amateur operator. As far as is known the only other sending outfit in Georgia are located in and around Atlanta.

Above are shown members of the group of artists who presented the program at 6 o'clock Thursday evening when broadcasting was started for WGM, the radio station of The Constitution. They are, left to right: Tom Standing, first violinist of the Howard theatre; Miss Marguerite Bartholomew, pianist and accompanist; Rieley Eakin, talented dramatic soprano, and Enrico Leide, director of the Howard theatre.

New Yorker Hears Constitution Music, In Spite of Static

Miss Ruth Ramsey's radio piano recital on the night of the Fourth of July entertained an audience in New York city, according to a letter received by the radio editor yesterday from S. D. Sebring, of New York.

"The modulation appeared to be very good," Mr. Sebring wrote, "and the music could be heard with the receivers lying on the table."

The Constitution's programs were frequently heard in New York and before the high power agricultural began, but Mr. Sebring is the first New Yorker to report picking up a concert in more than two weeks.

FIFTEEN MINUTES OF RADIO EACH DAY

BY EDWARD N. DAVIS
Formerly Technical Electrical Expert for United States Government

LESSON NO. 89.
Summer Time Radio Receiving.

It is a well-known fact among amateur radio men that much greater ranges are covered with receiving sets on the cold, clear winter nights than on the warm, damp, summer nights. This accounts in a large measure for the popularity of radio during the winter and the usual falling off in amateur activities with entrance of the so-called "static season."

Many enthusiastic amateurs, however, will desire to take some form of receiving set with them on their camping trips or possibly install small sets on yachts. The recent appearance on the market of a receiving set employing a vacuum tube detector, the filament current of which is supplied by an ordinary dry cell simplifies the problem of securing an efficient portable set. Usually it is inconvenient to transport a storage battery to the summer home and even if this may be accomplished without damage to the battery, there still remains the problem of charging it. The type of equipment should be chosen with a definite purpose in view, for example, if the receiving set will be tried out before starting on the trip and requires no outside wires or other local gear for its proper functioning.

The coil or loop aerial with both radio and audio frequency amplifiers is very efficient for receiving broadcasts and does not suffer from static disturbances as much as a receiving set employing a large capacity antenna system. This type of equipment may be tried out before starting on the trip and requires no outside wires or other local gear for its proper functioning.

For the vacationist who goes to some place within a short distance of a large city where there may be a fairly high-powered broadcasting station, a crystal set or a simple regenerative set may suffice if a single wire about 100 feet long can be erected between high trees for an aerial. It is probably more important to take necessary precautions against damage from electrical storms on installations in the country than in the city, due to the scarcity of other wires and metallic bodies which allow the atmospheric charges to leak off gradually. For this reason care should be exercised in the construction of the aerial system to provide either an approved type of vacuum arrester or a double-throw, single pole switch of ample proportions.

Where it is difficult to secure a good ground connection on a water pipe, the plan is to use a ground rod of galvanized iron or copper, driven into the ground, several feet being placed upon it to hold it in place. The ground wire is connected to the netting which forms a simple but effective ground, not only for receiving, but also for transmitting sets.

If it is planned to operate a transmitting station on a yacht or at a country home the necessary steps to arrange for the issuance of the federal licenses required should be taken some time in advance to guard against possible delay. A license is required for every transmitting station and this license authorizes the use of the transmitter at a given location and covers only the particular equipment described in the application.

ANSWERS TO QUESTIONS

Radio Editor:—My radiotron U V 200 bulb seems to flicker once in a while about every five or ten minutes. It affects the sound in my room. I have gone over all connections but can find no fault. This is the only bulb I use and the flicker is almost instantaneous. I have proved that it is not the fault of my rheostat. Could it be the fault of my A battery or would any of the B battery connections affect my bulb in any such manner?

H. T.

This flicker cannot be the fault of the tube, but is the fault of the connection between the tube and the rheostat. Go over these points once again. The B battery would not affect it in any such manner.

Radio Editor:—In making a variocoupler what number wire and how much is needed for the primary? How many taps shall I have? How many turns to each tap? How many turns on secondary and primary? What diameter of tube should I use?

L. A. B.

No. 22 wire will be suitable for both windings. About seven or eight taps with ten turns to a tap will do for the primary. About forty turns should be wound on the secondary. A four-inch tube will be about right.

EDISON PROGRAM IS GIVEN BY WGM

Radio enthusiasts at 9 o'clock last night were given an impromptu program of Edison records, in connection with a brief news report. Both voice and instrumental numbers were given.

The Edison program, which was arranged through the Edison Shop, was opened with an orchestra number, "My Waikiki Mermaid," played by the Waikiki Hawaiian orchestra.

The first vocal number on the program was "Love Me or Not," a tenor solo by Paul Weimann, an artist who has made a great many records.

Albert Spaulding, an Edison violinist of wide reputation, came in for two selections on the program. The first violin number was "From the Cottonfields," a Spaulding composition.

"Alice, Where Art Thou?" a tenor solo by Ralph Errolle, was the fourth number. This was followed by Schubert's "Serenade" in a violin solo by Albert Spaulding.

The concluding number was a piano solo, "Pain't Nobody's Darling," played by Ray Perkins.

San Francisco Federal Reserve Lowers Rate

Washington, July 9.—Reductions of the rediscount rate of the Federal Reserve bank of San Francisco from 4 1/2 to 4 per cent, effective tomorrow, was announced today by the federal reserve board.

The San Francisco bank is the third institution of the federal reserve system to cut its rate to the 4 per cent level, New York and Boston having previously announced similar reductions. Reductions by the Federal Reserve bank of San Francisco were forecast several weeks ago at the treasury and was regarded here as part of a general reduction of federal reserve rediscount rates.

CARROLL DEMONSTRATED THE WHIP COTTON PEST

Carrollton, Ga., July 7.—(Special.)—Friday, the second day of the boll weevil campaign in Carrollton was a day of intense activity.

A committee, drafted by Claude E. Smith, of Mandeville mill, who is campaign manager, and composed of Judge C. E. Roop, president of Carrollton bank; A. K. Sneed, cashier Citizens bank; C. C. Cook, cashier Peoples' bank; Charles A. Lyle, cashier, First National bank; T. R. Luck, president Carrollton Drug company; S. J. Steinbach and J. C. Griffin, visited every business house of the town asking them to close the stores every afternoon at 4 p. m., except Saturday, and to go out with the demonstration party to scheduled meetings with farmers.

Actual demonstrations in the use of hands and calcium arsenate are to be made and every planter urged to use the insecticide in the demonstrations. The speech of C. A. Whittle, of the soil improvement committee, was so clear and explicit that virtually all who heard him Thursday were converted to the extensive use of calcium arsenate in dust form.

Another mass meeting is planned in about a week, when Dr. J. DeLoach, of Experiment farm station, is expected to attend. A committee of business men, appointed at the mass meeting of Thursday, canvassed the town Friday for signatures to an agreement to underwrite a carload of calcium arsenate, which will be sold to users at actual cost. Similar arrangements are being made to handle hand guns.

County Agent Jackson has been assured of expert help from the state college at Athens for next week. The campaign is expected to last two weeks and the business men are showing a splendid spirit of co-operation.

The city of Carrollton county farmers are high-grade white farmers and will make a strong fight against the encroachment of the weevil.

PLUMBING ACTIVITY BREAKS ALL RECORDS

With a total of more than 2,000 permits for installation of plumbing since the first of the year having been issued by J. A. G. Beach, city plumbing inspector, all records in this activity have been exceeded and it is expected by the end of the year the total will show a tremendous gain over other years.

"I have never seen greater activity in building in Atlanta since I have been connected with the city plumbing department," declared Beach. "There may be an industrial panic in other sections of the country but it certainly does not appear that Atlanta has been reached by it."

Joy Ride Proves To Be Costly Trip
For Kinsey Davis

W. H. Spicer, of 102 Bryan street, informed police that he had been held up at the point of pistols by three unidentified white men about 9:30 o'clock Friday night and his pockets rifled of a wallet containing $80 in currency.

The holdup occurred at the intersection of Kelly and Hill streets on Woodward avenue. The three men, according to Spicer, stepped out of a dark place, two of them covering him with pistols while the third ransacked his pockets.

Kinsey Davis, of 229 West North avenue, reported to police that his pockets containing $40 had been picked off while he was joy riding with several men and women who he had never seen before.

He was walking along Peachtree he saw when an automobile drove up to the curb and stopped. A man called to him and asked if he wanted to "join the party." He accepted the invitation and was given several drinks of whisky, which he claimed caused him to fall asleep. When he awakened, Davis said, he was sitting on the sidewalk near the place he entered the car, minus his money.

PLEDGES PASSAGE OF BONUS BEFORE
SENATE ADJOURNS

Washington, July 7.—There will be no adjournment of congress until the soldiers' compensation bill has been passed. It will be taken up and disposed of under a special agreement as soon as the tariff bill is passed.

This promise was made today by Senator McCumber, of North Dakota, chairman of the finance committee, to Mrs. H. R. Smith, of Whitman, Mass., who delivered a third petition bearing a million signatures for enactment by congress of the soldiers' bonus bill. Mrs. Smith, dressed in the uniform of the Salvation Army, was accompanied by a score of wounded veterans from the Walter Reed general hospital when she presented the memorial.

"It's heavy and certainly has some weight," said Senator McCumber, as he grasped the bundle.

"We hope you will give some weight in the senate," said Mrs. Smith.

"It will," the senator replied.

Union Men Object
To Strikebreakers
Carrying Weapons

Complaint that strikebreakers in Atlanta are carrying weapons and in some instances have drawn pistols on strikers was made to the chief of police and sheriff Friday by union leaders.

The authorities were asked by the striking railway shompen to require strikebreakers to abide by the law and remain unarmed except when actually on railroad property.

Guy Travis, who was arrested at the Georgia railroad shops Friday morning at 10 o'clock Congress, for carrying a pistol without a license, will be arraigned before Recorder George E. Johnson sometime Saturday.

Detectives state they found Travis armed while operating a crane engine. He is said to have claimed to be on a furlough from Camp Bragg, N. C., where he is a soldier.

Travis was released on $100 bond furnished by H. M. Speer, an official of the railroad. Speer took the position that the railroads have the right to employ armed men as a precautionary measure during the strike.

The first mass meeting of strikers to which the public has been invited will be held at the auditorium Saturday morning at 10 o'clock. Congressman William D. Upshaw, Representative J. G. Valentino, of Chatham, and Charles Nicholson, of Washington, member of the general executive board of the International Association of Machinists, who will remain here throughout the strike, will be the principal speakers.

"We have lost a man out of the 2,000 who walked out," G. C. Whipple, business agent for the association, declared Friday. "Helpers and laborers who are not even affiliated with us are remaining out solidly."

Life Threatened

Wife Testifies

Grand Rapids, Mich., July 7.—"Mel" Trotter, nationally known evangelist, threatened to kill his wife if she did not stop circulating her claim that one of his girl helpers at the gospel mission here was the mother of his child. Mrs. Trotter testified Friday, in her suit for separation.

"If you make those charges stick, I'll kill you!" Trotter threatened, the wife testified.

Mrs. Trotter told of the occasion when she attacked Miss Florence Moody, Trotter's private secretary, with whom his wife claimed he was intimate. Mrs. Trotter said she had slapped her husband and Miss Moody after they had made an alleged confession of intimacy, on the condition that the girl leave both Trotter and the mission for good.

Then she walked into the mission the following Sunday, and found Miss Moody teaching a Bible class, she said. Mrs. Trotter said she had slapped Miss Moody and given her such a "good shaking" that the younger girl promised to go away.

Trotter, Trotter and out about this, Mrs. Trotter testified, and slapped and punched her.
